5 Steps to Stop Losing After-Hours Calls

For Arizona home service businesses. Every missed call is revenue walking out the door — here's what actually happens when those calls go unanswered.

THE RECOVERY STEPS

- 1

Find out what you're actually missing

Most owners significantly underestimate how many after-hours calls they lose. Pull your phone logs for the last 30 days and count every call that went to voicemail, rang out, or wasn't returned within 5 minutes.

Assign a dollar value to each missed call

Multiply missed calls by your close rate and average job value. A plumber missing 4 calls/week at 60% close rate and $850 average job value is losing over $100K/year. The number changes everything.
- 3

Reroute your after-hours calls to a live person

When no one on your team can reliably answer after hours, those calls go to whoever picks up first. Most owners don't see how often this actually happens until they look at the numbers.

Respond within the first 5 minutes

Leads contacted within 5 minutes are 21x more likely to convert. After 10 minutes, they've already called the next company. The difference between a $3,000 panel job and a voicemail nobody checks is about 5 minutes.
- 5

Track what you recover

Once you close the after-hours gap, measure it. Track calls answered, jobs booked, and revenue captured that would have been lost. If you can't see what you're recovering, you won't know what it's actually worth.
